

DEAL SOURCING FOR EQUIPMENT FINANCE

Bring a dealer a customer, not a pitch.

Quintel reads the public record for companies about to buy the equipment you fund, early enough that your team can put the deal where you want it.

July 2026

OPENING A DEALER

Walk in with demand you brought.

1

Name the category

An equipment category you want a program in and don't have yet.

2

We surface who is about to buy

Companies in your box carrying public signals that the purchase is coming: work won, permits filed, fleets expanding, financing running down.

3

You reach them while it is open

Early enough that the equipment decision has not been made yet.

4

You open the dealer

The first conversation starts from a buyer you brought them rather than a rate sheet.

Every funder can offer a dealer a rate. Very few can offer them a buyer.

THE ENGINE

What you fund, run against the whole public record.

WHAT YOU FUND

Your criteria

Equipment categories, ticket range, company size, geography, contact requirements. Set with your team, tuned any time. Nothing surfaces that you could not write.

PUBLIC SIGNALS

Scattered across thousands of records

Financing filings, permits, contract awards, expansions, registrations, news. The evidence a purchase is coming is public. Finding it by hand across every source, every day, is not realistic.

WHAT YOU GET

One ranked list, with the why on every row

Scored against your categories, refreshed as new records land, and each name carries the trigger behind it and a link to the source document.

SIGNALS SCANNED CONTINUOUSLY

Financing maturity windows

Contract & project awards

Building permits

Facility expansions

New fleet authority

New locations & leases

Incumbent lender on record

+ dozens more public sources

WHAT LANDS

Every name arrives with the reason attached.

FROM A RECENT RUN

TKTK real surfaced company

TKTK sector · TKTK state

THE SIGNAL

TKTK: the dated trigger, in one line.

WHY IT IS ON THE LIST

TKTK: why this company is about to need equipment in this category, in the buyer's own terms.

THE EVIDENCE

Linked source: TKTK

Delivered with

Decision-maker contact, company profile, estimated ticket range, and the incumbent lender where the filing names one.

Where it lands

Into your CRM, or exported as CSV, alongside everything else surfaced that day.

Filtered how you work

Equipment category, ticket size, company size, geography, contact completeness. If it matters to how you pick a name, it can be a filter.

WHAT IT IS WORTH

A dealer program is not one ticket.

ONE END USER

A funded deal

Real revenue, and it pays for the tool several times over. It also closes once.

ONE DEALER

Every deal that dealer sends, for as long as the relationship runs

Which is why the end-user deal is worth more as the thing that opens the program than as the ticket itself.

The number that decides whether this is worth your time is what one new dealer program earns you in a year. You know that figure and we do not, so it belongs in your hands, not ours. Put it against the cost of one seat and the answer is arithmetic.

THE BOOK YOU ALREADY HAVE

The same engine reads what you have already written.

RENEWALS

Your own portfolio, ranked by what is coming due

Equipment you financed sits on a clock. The filings are public, dated, and tied to assets with known replacement cycles.

The engine ranks your book by where that clock is running out, so the reactivation call goes out on the asset rather than on the age of the file.

EXISTING PROGRAMS

Volume into the dealers you already have

The same category targeting, pointed at programs that are already live. End users about to buy in your dealers' categories, surfaced to your team.

A dealer who sees buyers arriving from the relationship treats it differently from one who only sees paper.

Worth saying plainly: no one else can be sold which of your funded deals are coming up for replacement. That part is not a promise about who we work with. It is a fact about where the data comes from.

GETTING STARTED

Name one dealer program you want and don't have.

STEP 1

You name the category

One equipment category, your ticket range, and the geography you cover. Five minutes.

STEP 2

We run it against your box

Real companies with real triggers and a link to the record behind each one. If the volume is not there in your category, you will hear that from us first.

STEP 3

We walk it together

A short call once the run is back. Twenty minutes on your own market rather than a demo account.

The run costs you one category and five minutes. It is the fastest way to find out whether the volume is there in your market before anyone talks about terms.
